The Proposed Coursing Match Will Take Place Later.

SWIFT DOGS IN THIS CITY

Arrangements Made to Secure a Lot of Rabbits and Turn the Hounds Loose After Them Before Long.

A sore disappointment to the lovers of the chase was a telegram received late last night from Market Lake, which stated that no rabbits could be secured for the coursing match projected for to-day. The weather was inclement and the drive at Market Lake had to be postponed.

It was arranged yesterday morning by John B. Williams and James Conley to get 25 packs from those herded up in the Idaho drive, and an afternoon of fun was anticipated. The race track grounds were secured and the intention was to have a series of sweepstake coursing matches. In one particular the disappointment is mitigated by the gain in time to prepare for the sport which they expect to have at an early date.

Frank Conley of Deer Lodge sent word that his dogs had been chasing coyotes all the week and were not in condition to run. By the time the event is ready now the kennel will be fully rested. There are many grayhounds in Butte and other parts of the state, whose owners would greatly enjoy seeing in a race, and who, if given an opportunity, would be glad to start them. The event was to have been an impromptu affair but since the delay has ensued the preparation will be more carefully and elaborately made and a general invitation sent out for all to participate.

Among the Anaconda packs are some very fleet-footed dogs, an incomplete list of the local kennel is as follows: John B. Williams has Spokane, Spot and Imp. Ogden; John Reese has Ben Bolt and Daisy; Hugh Daily, Jem. Sveinall and Trilby; Ed. Mansfield, Silvery; Joe McDonald, War Horse; Dan Warren, Young Ben; Jem. Lappin, Swift; Col. Tom Austin, Tammany; E. B. Catlin, Major.

These with the Butte, Deer Lodge and Missoula dogs will make things interesting for the natives of Idaho's sage brush and the races will be the genuine article, whenever they are run, which will probably be next Sunday.

LAST NIGHT'S PLAY.

"The Highest Bidder" Pleased a Good-Sized Audience.

The performance of "The Highest Bidder" by the Frawley's, pleased a large audience at Evans' opera house last evening. The same finished work and care was seen in the company that is found in all of their performances. The play was light, though possessing strong situations, and a thread of thrilling drama, a backbone for the comedy. Frank Worthington as Jack Hammerton, and Miss Bates as Rose Thornhill, were the central figures, around whom were grouped the other clever people of the troupe in well fitted characters.

President Forbes wired the Standard last night that the distinguished visitor, Mr. Debs, would pay Anaconda a visit before leaving Montana. Arrangements will probably be made at once for a public reception to Mr. Debs, who has been in Anaconda on previous occasions and has always received a most cordial greeting.

The Delegation Returns.

The Anaconda delegation returned from Helena last evening. Though Anaconda took the good news, playing the failure of the county division scheme very quietly, it was not so in Helena, where the Anacondans fittingly celebrated their victory.

Brave Amazons in Berlin.

From the London Times. The greatest attractions in Berlin just now are the 42 members of the Amazon guard of King Behanzin. One behold these gigantic specimens of the female population of tropical Africa realizes how the French could forget all their gallantry toward women when opposing those on the battlefield. The Dahomeyan weapon-carrying women certainly did not make any declaration of love to the French. They play with the gun and bayonet as if these weapons of destruction were sunshades or fans. Fierce battle cries are their music. Their uniform is of the simplest, and consists of a tunic of white cotton material, which hangs loosely around their shoulders and reaches to a point a little above the knees. Their skin is jet black, their eyes sharp and brilliant, their hair short and woolly. Under the command of their officer, called the "summa," they go through their military drills with a precision and a vim which are not only surprising, but which attract many a military company with an illustration of perfect exactness in movements. The place where they exhibit is very cleverly transformed into an African village. Huts built of rushes serve as lodgings, and the stockade around the village is adorned with poles, crowned with skulls of the foes slain by these martial women.

Powell County Workers Return to Their Quiet Home City.

A RECEPTION AWAITED THEM

Jones, the Suspected California Murderer, Released From Jail, as He is Not Dunham—Other News.

Special Correspondence of the Standard.

Deer Lodge, Feb. 6.—The Deer Lodge visitors to Helena returned this afternoon on the 1:10 o'clock train. Contrary to their expectations, they were met by a large crowd at the depot, and a sleigh was in waiting to conduct them up town. They were taken to Lew Coleman's office, on Main street, where the mound of a grave had been built of snow on the sidewalk. At the head of the grave was a white headboard, with the following inscription on it: "In Memory of Powell County."

On the other side of the board was printed: "Died, in Helena, Feb. 5th, 1897, Powell County, alias Bill 21." After the citizens had gazed mournfully at the grave their attention was called to an ice chair in front of the butcher shop, next door, which bore a placard to this effect: "If you are hot take a seat."

A telegram was received at the sheriff's office this morning saying that the photographs of the man held here on suspicion of being James C. Dunham had been received and that he is not the man wanted. The dispatch was from J. H. Lydon, sheriff of Santa Clara county, Cal. So M. M. Jones was released from confinement. He said he did not blame the officers here in the least; that he had been well treated since his incarceration, and that it was immaterial to him whether Sheriff Lydon came after him or not, as he did not object to a trip to California, for he knew he could prove his identity at the proper time to prevent being prosecuted as Dunham. A few minutes after Jones was let out of the jail cell he was talking over the telephone with Mr. Ferris in Helena, the gentleman who repeatedly offered to come to Deer Lodge and establish an alibi for the prisoner. Jones expressed to Ferris his gratitude for the kind offers, saying he was so certain of being released that he did not care to trouble any of his friends.

A. B. Browne and L. C. Parker went to Missoula this morning.

William Coleman, H. J. Toomey, H. B. Davis, A. D. Peck, Capt. J. H. Mills, Alf Whitworth and William Aylesworth returned from Helena this afternoon.

There was a runaway just north of town this afternoon. One of the soiled doves of the Deer Lodge bad lands hired a horse and cutter from the livery and started to enjoy an outing. From the reckless way in which she drove through the streets an accident was imminent, but did not happen until the extreme north end of Main street, and here the horse was traveling at a rapid gait, when the cutter struck a large rock, and the next instant the woman was standing on her head in a snow drift. The horse proceeded to run and finally tried to jump a fence, where the cutter was left behind, sadly demolished. The horse was caught a few minutes afterwards in town and taken to the livery stable. The woman was unhurt.

The American, edited by Master Howard K. Welch is out to-day with an anniversary number. A year ago Howard commenced to edit and print the smallest paper published in the United States. It was four pages, about the size of a visiting card. To-day the paper has 12 pages, 6x4 1/2 inches, and a bona fide subscription list of over four hundred, and the little paper goes to nearly every state in the union, and to London, Paris and Berlin, across the water. The editor is a live, hustling school boy, aged 13 years, and his spare time out of school is spent in working to make a success of his paper, which he has done admirably, as its columns are filled weekly with newsy items, and local and foreign merchants patronize its sheets with their advertisements. Master Howard has made his small paper successful, in a financial way also, which is something that not all grown editors can truthfully say.

Bishop Brewer of Helena arrived in Deer Lodge this afternoon. John McGrath, a county patient from Anaconda, died at St. Joseph's hospital this afternoon from a complication of bronchial and lung troubles. The deceased was 64 years of age.

James Preston, an old-time resident of this city, was here to-day. At present Mr. Preston is living in the Big Hole country, where he owns a ranch property and has some placer ground a few miles from his ranch.

Miss Jennie Harris returned from an extended visit in Anaconda this morning, where she has been staying with her sister, Mrs. Joseph Spence. Miss Harris was called home by a telegram announcing the illness of her mother.

MECCA OF THE LOVE-LORN.

Something About Gretna Green, Where Runaway Couples Were Wedded.

From the New York Sun.

Jan. 1, 1857, the runaway matrimonial matches, well known as Gretna Green marriages, were virtually abolished by the terms of an act of parliament which had been passed in the previous year, and which now came into operation. Gretna Green is the name of a place just within the Scotch border, in the county of Dumfries, near the head of the Solway firth. A marriage act of 1554 had suppressed Fleet marriages, which were performed without banns or license, by needy clergymen who for their debts were confined in the Fleet prison at London. As many as 50 such marriages were sometimes celebrated in this disreputable manner in one day, and James Malcom, the antiquary, who lived from about 1760 till 1815, states that 2,554 were registered there in the four months ending Feb. 12, 1765. But after the abolition of such marriages in England people wishing to marry clandestinely were generally obliged to go out of this country for the purpose. Thus the practice arose of crossing the border into Scotland, in which country man and woman, whether minors or not, are legally married if they only declare before witnesses that they are man and wife.

Gretna, as the first place reached in Scotland by persons crossing the border, by 1771 had become the resort of runaway couples. The declaration that they took one another for man and wife was perhaps originally made before a man whose trade was a black smith, and this, at any rate, continued to be the traditional calling of the person who thus officiated. The church was commonly the tollhouse till 1828, and afterward Gretna hall was the meeting place. At the tollhouse nearly 200 couples were sometimes united in a twelve-month. On Feb. 21, 1842, Robert Elliott, the Gretna Green "priest," wrote to the Times, stating that he had married 4,444 persons from the year 1811 to 1839, the largest number in any one year being 198 and the smallest 42. He could of course give the exact number, because part of his work to enter and preserve in a register the names of the married parties, with dates. The fee charged ranged from half a guinea to $500, according to doubt, to the supposed finances of the lovers.

One of the earliest of these runaway matches was that of Richard Lovell Edgeworth, in 1763, father of Maria Edgeworth, the authoress, and among his successors were Eldon and Erskine, each afterward lord chancellor, and Lord Dundonald, besides numerous scions of the noble family of Villiers, Fane, Beauchamp, Coventry, Paget and others. But the act of parliament of 1856 rendered all such marriages illegal from Jan. 1, 1857, unless one of the parties had been residing in Scotland for 21 days previously, which of course, would give time to any to interfere who had authority to do so.

The Advice of Experience.

From the Chicago Post.

"Do you know anything about buying crockery for the house?"

The man with the bald head looked at his questioner pityingly before replying:

"A little," he said, at last.

"You've tried it, have you?"

"I have."

"Then you're just the man I want. You see, I need a little advice in regard to a dinner set."

"You may put it down as in incontrovertible truth," said the man with the bald head, "that the only advice in that line which is of the slightest value is contained in three words."

"Which are?"

"Don't try it. Don't let your enthusiasm and self-confidence permit you to make the mistake of your life. Just give the money to your wife."
